

Successful adalimumab graded challenge after delayed reaction to golimumab in a woman with Rheumatoid Arthritis

Federica Rivolta¹, Andrea Sangalli², Camilla Cappelletti², Alessandra Chiei Gallo², Marco Dubini², and Valerio Pravettoni³

¹Policlinico di Milano

²University of Milan

³IRCCS Foundation Maggiore Policlinico Hospital

December 7, 2022

Abstract

We describe the case of a patient with a diagnosis of rheumatoid arthritis experiencing a mucocutaneous delayed reaction to golimumab. Anyway, there is no consensus regarding the best management of delayed reactions to biologics. Excluding allergic cross-reactivity or sensitization, we finally tested adalimumab by a graded challenge.

Hosted file

Successful adalimumab graded challenge after delayed reaction to golimumab in a woman with Rheumatoid Arthritis is available at <https://authorea.com/users/390805/articles/610692-successful-adalimumab-graded-challenge-after-delayed-reaction-to-golimumab-in-a-woman-with-rheumatoid-arthritis>