

The effects of structural parameters on water film were studied systematically.
Increasing transpiration water layer reduced reactor center temperature.
Increasing transpiring wall porosity and inner diameter improved coverage rate.
Increasing transpiration water layer reduced water film temperature.
Increasing transpiring wall porosity expanded subcritical salt-dissolving zone.